APR = Annual Percentage Rate

Introductory APR good for the 1st six months the line is open and valid for new lines only. After that, rates for the variable rate line of credit are based on the High Prime Rate published Wall Street Journal - a margin of .51%. As of 1/1/18, the Prime Rate was 4.50%. The current variable rate without the introductory offer is a promotional 3.74%, below the contractual rate floor. The Credit Union may choose to offer promotional rates from time to time below an established minimum variable rate of 4.0%. Such offers will not affect the Credit Union's ability to enforce minimum rates in the future. Fixed rate option advances taken under the line of credit are available for terms up to 180 months. Future fixed rate advances beyond current promotional rates being offered will be set at margins off our best rates, depending on the term selected and credit worthiness, and subject to minimum and maximum rates. A $5,000 three-year fixed rate loan at the promotional rate of 2.99% APR would yield a monthly payment of $145.02. Terms and conditions are subject to change without notice.
